As the bells of this ancient city tolled in Aug. 21, the day when Warsaw Pact troops marched into this country last year, the police and soldiers were once again in control after a night of violence on the cobbled streets off Wenceslas Square. Two persons were killed. Late Wednesday night a group of about 300 youths built two barricades just off Wenceslas Square and threw paving stones at armored cars causing further tension. But shortly before midnight as police and troops moved in on them, they quietly slipped away.

The main gathering point for the demonstrators was Wenceslas Square. Police lobbed scores of tear gas cannisters into the crowd, which swelled from 10,000 during the evening rush hour to 20,000, and made repeated charges with their truncheons swinging. Some of the youths picked up the empty tear gas shells and threw them hours to get the best seats memory still hurts.

At a well-organized Socred rally in North Kamloops the following night he was given a standing ovation, then asked the audience: "Where were you when I needed you?" In past elections, Mr.

Gaglardi has crushed all opposition. In 1963 he soundly defeated Kamloops lawyer and former federal cabinet minister E. Davle Fulton, seeking election here as provincial leader of the Conservatives. Until now his opponents have regarded this Socred seat as pretty well invulnerable. This is obviously no longer their attitude.

Lawyer Jarl Whist, campaign manager for Liberal Mac Bryson, says: 'We're just on the verge of taking this riding - it's that He claims the party will be helped tremendously by the momentum generated in the 1968 campaign which saw Liberal Len Marchand defeat Mr. Fulton.

"We want the NDP to do as well as possible," says Mr. Whist, "My antennas are out, I have a feeling things are going right, just as they did in the last federal campaign. And if things are going right they might just turn out to be right on Aug. 27.

'Gaglardi could end up third behind us and the NDP. If we do lose it will be by a slim margin — and we'll take him by a landslide in the next election.'

Liberal strategists note there has been an 8,000 increase in the voters' list. They predict only about 15,000 of the 22,000 eligible voters will turn out and figure the NDP will probably increase its second-place tally of 3,237 votes in 1966 to approximately 5.000 this time.

That leaves roughly 10,000 votes, by Liberal calculations, to be divided between Mr. Gaglardi and Mr. Social Credit polled 5.753 to win in 1966 but the Liberals feel they can take sufficient votes from Mr. Gaglardi to give them a narrow win in the three-way race. The Liberal committee rooms hum with activity. Many youthful volunteers, and some not so young, are eagerly turning the wheels of an obviously well-oiled organization. No Reason for Change

THE QUESTION BRITISH COLUMBIANS must answer satisfactorily to themselves next Wednesday is, "What are the alternatives to a Social Credit

Great play has been made by would-be cabinet ministers that the winds are changing and that it is time for a change of government. These are natural political instincts, and they should be treated purely as such.

The important point for the electors is to assure themselves that if they vote against the government that they are going to like what they may get.

The first is minority rule, whether by the Social Credit or by the NDP, or even by the Liberals, although the latter is extremely unlikely.

Minority rule has been experienced by Canadians at Ottawa for many years until the Trudeau government came into being, in 1968, and what happened in that period is describable in history as There is little doubt that with a minority government in British Columbia, the third party would play a destructive role with its own future in mind first and the good of the public second. The thought is not a pleasant one, yet with a divided vote it is a condition which might easily arise, and is indicated as a very probable sequel bearing Ottawa happenings in mind.

Another alternative is an NDP majority govern-ment, less likely than the first alternative, but still a possibility. Much less likely is the third alternative—that of a Liberal government—for that party would have to win an additional 21 seats and lose none to become a majority government. In the end therefore the voters have to decide whether they believe that of the choices offered there is a better leader for the province than Premier Bennett With 17 years' experience, and a magnificent record of achievement behind him, there is very little new that he can promise and still stay within the bounds of the government's firm concept of good management. As dean of the provincial premiers, Premier

Bennett offers not pie in the sky but pie on the plate. His platform promises of increased educational grants, increased social assistance payments, increased homeowner grants, increased home acquisition grants, increased grants for health services and increased old age pensions, are all made in the sure knowledge experience alone can bring, that they can be implemented without increased taxation, and also without reintroducing a provincial debt.

To most British Columbians the biggest investment they have is in their own province. If we accept Tom Berger as the main rival for the premier's job then the voters have to decide whether Bennett or Berger is the man they want at the helm.

On the one hand is an experienced businessman, the other a vouthful lawyer deeply tied professionally into the trade-union movement and possibly more sectarian in his views than either of the other leaders.

McGeer has not so far shown that his feet are planted firmly on the ground. He appears at times as a tough fighter and then next as an intellectual visionary, and there are indications that there are others in his team who have better qualifications for the post.

Apart from the declaration that it will try to nationalize the B.C. Telephone Company, the NDP has adopted most of the principles of the Social Credit government—the home owners grant for one—and it must remain in very great doubt as to whether they can do as good a job as administrators.

In other words, a change for change's sake is a poor argument and is not one likely to win the approval of the thinking voter.

Mission to Paris

CANADIANS IN GENERAL and Prime Minister Trudeau in particular should be grateful for Quebec Premier Bertrand's magnanimous decision to intercede with Paris on Ottawa's behalf.

The Quebec leader has only just revealed that immediately after he was elected by the ruling Union Nationale party as successor to the late Premier Daniel Johnson, he dispatched a deputy minister to France with a personal message for President Georges Pompidou requesting that the French government be nicer to the Canadian government in future.

Discussing the move, Premier Bertrand said: "I don't see any advantage in having cool relations between Canada and France. I think there should be good relations among Quebec, Canada and France.'

He described the contents of the message which was delivered in July to the new Pompidou government this way: "I expressed my desire to have close relations with France without neglecting relations with Canada.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Trudeau is appreciative of Mr. Bertrand's efforts to clear up whatever misunderstandings may exist between Ottawa and Paris, Certainly Mr. Trudeau's attitude toward the France versus Canada versus Quebec issue has been one which could confuse Frenchman just as easily as it has confused Canadians.

Mr. Bertrand will deserve this nation's plaudits if he is able to explain Ottawa to Frenchmen. Indeed, if he is successful, he might next try explaining it to Ottawa Canadians.

Experts Unheeded

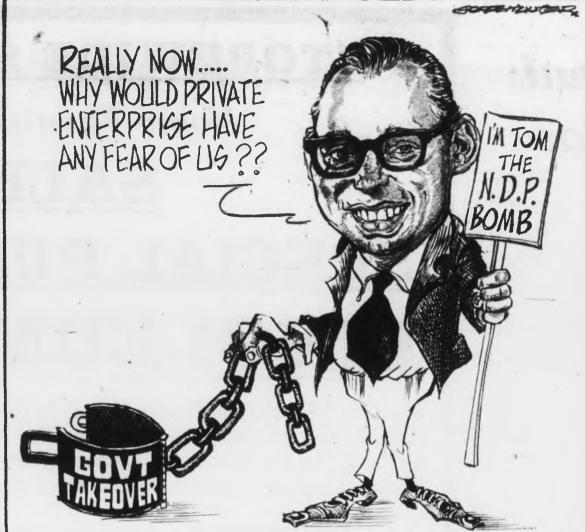

GENERAL JEAN VICTOR ALLARD, defence staff chief, on the eve of retirement, is finding it hard to accept the drastic cuts in Canada's armed forces by another 18,000 men. And he has frankly expressed the fear the nation will be hard-pressed to meet its military commitments.

Although he denied it, he was quoted as saying last June he had been told "to keep my mouth shut" with reference to proposed economies within the services

Now, at the end of a distinguished career, he speaks frankly.

He hopes that as circumstances alter the forces can be rebuilt and he calls "immoral" a policy of abandoning nuclear weapons which would be "almost to advocate war

What a pity it is that the government at Ottawa continues heedless of the advice of its military leaders.

Noise Nuisance Annoys Visitor

WE have been coming to Victoria every year since 1950, spending long and longer periods of time here during the summers. We hope to live here eventually.

We like Victoria immensely with its friendly and civic-minded people and can hardly wait to get back each year. Although we live about an hour's drive from Los Angeles, we do most of our shopping here for Christmas and family birthday gifts because up until this year it has been so much more pleasant to do so.

We don't mind the drive-in refreshment stands because they serve a useful and needed purpose and the newer ones are rather attractive in appearance. The used car lots needed and useful and can't be helped much. However there is one thing

Victoria could do to improve the general environment of this lovely area and that is to insist that its police officers issue citations to persons driving vehicles with noise-making devices on them in place of mufflers. Why these bad mannered motorists are permitted to break the law with such seeming impunity is beyond my understanding. Sixteen Soviet Intellectuals Damn Kremlin Tyranny

Courageous Few Utter Protest

The Soviet Union approached Thursday's first annivergary of the Czechoslovak invasion with a silence broken only by the frail protest of 16 Russian intellectuals. But for the dissident voices of a historian, a novelist, a poet and 13 other intellectuals, the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia might have passed unnoticed and unquestioned Wednesday. The dissidents' message declared:

"We 'declare our solidarity with the people of Czechoslovakia who wanted to prove that socialism with a human aspect is possible. These lines are dictated in pain for our fatherland, which we want to see truly great, free and

"We are firmly convinced that a people which oppresses other peoples cannot be free and happy."

The protest spoke of the once bright hope for socialist democracy in Czechoslovakia. It condemned the invasion and occupation for dashing those hopes and, with them, the wish to restore socialist ideas unblemished by Stalinist oppression. The dissidents referred to the Soviet action as a tragic chapter in this country's history.

Among those signing the protest were Pyotr Yakir, a 46year-old historian and son of the late Gen. Ion Yakir, executed in 1937 during a Stalin purge. Yakir is now titular head of the Soviet dissident intellectual community, a group whose size continues to dwindle through repeated arrest and

Meanwhile, the contrast between Moscow's public statements and anniversary developments in Prague grew more startling as the day wore on.

Tear-gas and water-hose activity against Czechoslovak crowds went unmentioned in the controlled Soviet press. The central press also chose to avoid any mention of increasing arrests in Prague, as well as the need for extraordinary security precautions carried out by heavy police and military Instead, the chief Soviet Communist Party organ, Prayda, carried an attack on the "bourgeois" Austrian press for paying close attention to the Czechoslovak crisis on this first anniversary date. Pravda charged the Austrian press with a widespread campaign to support the "adventurist, antisocialist elements in Czechoslovakia.

Roads Threaten Peace

India has issued a white paper formally charging that Chinese road-building in Kashmir is "a threat to peace in Asia.

The Indian action calls attention to a flurry of roadbuilding throughout the Himalayas which is taking on increasing strategic importance. Not only India and China but the United States, United Kingdom and the Soviet Union are involved. * * *

The white paper appeared concurrently with press reports here that the Chinese were moving thousands of troops from Tibet to the Sinkiang border, scene of fighting with the Russians.

Such a march in all likelihood would use the road between Tibet and Sinkiang which China built in 1950 across Aksai China, the northern bulge of Indian

When I drove over it last month, there was very little traffic. Chinese goods destined for Nepal still are shipped by sea to Calcutta, not down the road from Tibet.

In the spate of road-building of recent years, India has seen the once-formidable Himalays shrink as a defensive barrier to her vulnerable plains.

Militant with Sense of Humor

Reuters, from New Delhi

Varajagiri Venkata Giri, the new president of India is a militant. Irish-trained lawyer with a pucking sense of humor.

He became acting president of India in May after the death of President Zakir Hussain. In July he announced that he would contest the election for the office of president a move which widened a breach in the governing Congress Party.

Giri, 75, had the support of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and most left-wing and became friendly with some of its leaders. before the British banned him from Ireland.

Returning to British-ruled India, Girl joined Mohandas Gandhi's freedom movement and plunged into union affairs. He represented Indian labor at international labor conferences in the 1920s and 30s.

Giri became labor minister in Madras in 1937 and, after independence, was India's high commissioner in Ceylon. In 1952, he joined the late Jawaharlal Nehru's cabinet as labor minister but resigned two years later.

The process known as composting whereby refuse and sewage sludge can be converted into clean material for use as fertilizer, is one such alterna tive method, being used in many other parts of the world. I am not well enough informed about the many factors involved in compost-ing or whether it could be suitably or economically implemented here. However since we are planning sew age disposal for many year: ahead, for a greatly in-creased population with emphasis on the promotion of healthier environment, at acceptable cost, the process of composting should be giver immediate and urgent study commission of engineer logists, public health phy sicians, economists and mem bers of related discipline pers of related disciplines could conduct this study par-allel to the purely oceano-graphic studies mentioned yesterday. The time taken up by these studies would surely be compensated for by this society ultimately installing the method of sewage dis-posal most suitable for this area, taking all factors into account. We must resist the emotional outburst, "Let us do something now, even if it's the wrong thing."

Flood Plane Down 15 Killed in Laos

VIENTIANE, Lags (UPI) -A U.S. plane flying a flood relief mission into northern Laos crashed on a mountain Wednesday and authorities said all 15 persons aboard, including three Americans, were killed.

Heavy rains in neighboring North Vietnam swelled the Red River, forcing Communist officials to declare

British Columbia deserves Canada's best medicare plan

...and we've got it!

Remember what it was like when you had to pay every penny of your own doctor's bill...even if it ran into hundreds of dollars?

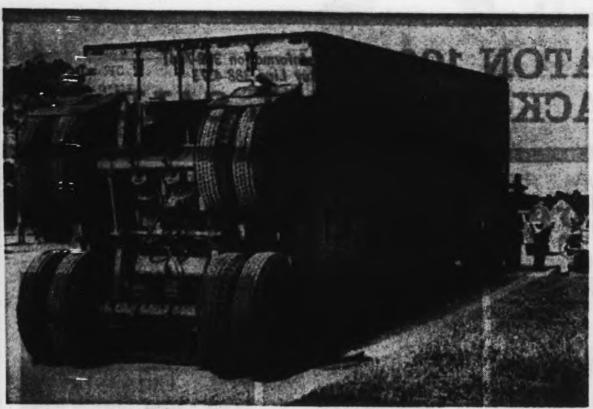

What a different story today!

Just one low monthly premium gives you the largest range of medical services available in any province in in Canada. No one need go without. If you have a low income, the Social Credit Government will pay from 50 to 90 per cent of your premiums. And the Provincial Government pays the full administrative cost of such additional services as eye examinations, oral surgery, physiotherapy, special nursing, and chiropractic care.

It's the best medicare program in Canada – a good thing to remember when you vote on August 27th.

Return the Bennett Team!

Outfall Data Lacking

Oak Bay alderman and Social Credit candiate Dr. Scott Wallace told about 20 people be "folly" for the government to go to the expense of installing extended sewer outfalls without first knowing if the outfalls would do any good.

Nobody had enough data to prove extended outfalls would solve the problem of water pollution, he said. Officials had to know more about the movement of water at the end of the outfall, to be sure the sewage wouldn't just be transferred to a body of water a few thousand feet offshore.

Dr. Wallace told a meeting of his constituents in Gordon Head Elementary school that if water motion wasn't sufficient to disperse the sewage from the outfalls, the result would be "a relatively stagnant cesspool 4,000 to 5,000 feet from shore.

Recipe of the Week

From Bea Wright's Kitchen Cooking a Shellbone Roast

Place roast on rack in shallow roasting pan, cover top of a lean roast with pieces of fat or dripping. Season half way through cooking and add vegetables during roasting if desired, but do not cover with a lid. Roast at 325° F. allowing approx. 20 to 40 minutes per lb. depending on whether it is to be rare or well done. Allow the longer time per lb. for roasts 3 to 6 lbs. and the shorter for larger roasts. A meat thermometer will be more accurate for judging the doneness of the meat.

Making Gravy: For each cup of gravy, pour off fat, leaving 2 thap, in pan. Add 1½-2 thap, flour and stir until well browned. Remove from heat, stir in a little cold water to make a smooth paste and gradually add 1 cup hot liquid water, meat stock or vegetable liquid to flour fat mixure. Continue stirring over low heat until smooth and thick. Allow approx. 3 to 4 thap, gravy per servings.

Until Baby's Home

Birth Escapes Rising Costs

By JUDY JENKINS

As the cost of living and the cost of dying continue to rise, one of the few relatively stable expenses for those covered by B.C. hospital and medical insurance is the cost of being born.

As many parents can attest, it isn't any cheaper to raise a child now than it was 10 years ago, but the initial cost to parents hasn't changed much. For example, hospital care for the average seven-or-eightday stay of the new mother remains at $1 a day under the British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service.

* * * For the woman not covered by BCHIS, the picture is different. In 1959, a woman would pay $17.05 a day in a ward in St. Joseph's Hospital for her own care, and another $5 a day for the baby.

Today the room would be $46.85 a day, and the baby's care would be $7 a day.

The situation is similar at Royal Jubilee Hospital. A standard ward was $18.65 a day 10 years ago, and the newborn's care was $5 a day. Now the room is $41.50 and baby care is $7.

Doctors' fees for delivery and pre-natal care have also increased, from about $75 in 1959 to $120 or so today. But the British Columbia Medical Plan reduces the cost to the patient to the cost of insurance premiums.

Once the baby and mother are home the actual cost of being born starts to shoot up. Diapers, which sold for $1.49 and up a dozen in 1959, now start at $4,67 a dozen.

Cribs were available for $25.95, 10 years ago, and now

Culture Against Midwife Role

Victoria doctors don't think midwives are likely to replace doctors in Canadian delivery

In the United Kingdom, nurses may become midwives by taking a year's training in addition to their nursing training * * *

And Federal Health Minister John Munro says Canadian nurses should be trained as midwives to cut expenses for patients and save obstetricians' time for problem births.

Mr. Munro made

Victoria doctors think it would be necessary to 'change everybody's way of thinking before it would work.

One gynecologist said, "Women in North America don't enjoy having another woman deliver them. Our culture is different from England's."

* * * One doctor commented that he had worked under the midwife system in England, and found it most satisfactory. But another Britain was completely different ... "there simply are no hospital beds for obstetric patients. "It is said that the North American obstetrician is the most expensive midwife on Why not cut expensive caseload by instructing nursing students in such fields? That way the obstetrician could use his or her talents to their full potential," Munro suggested.

But in British Columbia the medical aspect of having a baby isn't that expensive. Victoria general practitioners charge $120 for delivery and pre-natal and post-natal care. compared to $1500 in many parts of the United States. And here B.C. Medical foots the bill.

Victoria obstetricians, at least, aren't complaining about being overloaded. And they see disadvantages to Munro's idea of replacing

COMPANY - VICTORIA LTD 825 FORT ST. Above Blanchard St. PHONE 382-5138

Dear Ann Landers: Lloyd and I have been married for six months. The day we came home from our honeymoon Lloyd presented me with 14 pairs of socks to be darned, seven shirts with fraved cutts (He showed me how his mother turns them over) two jackets with holes at the elbows and five pairs of torn slacks.

Lloyd refuses to throw emything out. In fact he goes to second-hand sales to buy more worn-out rags. I have plenty of housework and yard work to keep me busy. I simply cannot spend hours mending, darning and patching things for this miserly guy who is not that hard up. I'm 23 and Lloyd is 30. Any advice? — Thimbled Therms. Dear Thim: Lloyd didn't need a wife. He should have merged with Singer. Tell him you will mend ripped seams and socks that are worth saving, but the stem-to-stern salvage program is out. Also inform him that if he buys any more rummage he will wear it, holes and all. The time to eail a halt is now or you'll be hemmed in for the rest of your life.

Dear Am: I am a divorces who is attractive but not beautiful, good company but not balliant, comfortable but not rich. A certain bachelor in our crowd is constantly paired with me bl friends, colleagues, and relatives. Everyone thinks of us as a couple but

In the past six months we have spent 30 evenings together - by actual count. I have invited him to the theater, to concerts, the ballet, to dinners at my home and have taken him to several family affairs.

* * * The truth is as follows: He is a charming companion but he hasn't spent $10 on me since the day I met him. What do you think of this relationship? — Gee Gee.

Dear Gee Gee: It's beautiful if you want to go through life buying tickets, giving parties and inviting this charming fellow to be your guest. I am sure, will be available as long as you are willing to provide him with free entertainment.

Dear Ann: My husband sells Insurance. He works harder than anybody I know. The poor guy is out of the house by 8 in the morning. He often makes calls after supper and doesn't get home until 10:30 p.m. or later. He gets no guaranteed salary, but works strictly on a commission basis.

My complaint is this: Several friends and relatives to whom he has sold insurance policies have said. "I'm sure you don't want to make any money on us — how about knocking off your commisdon?" He replies, "Of course." Then he mails them a check for the commission when he gets paid.

Dear Em: I think these bargain hunters have plenty of gall. Would they ask a friendly grocer for free canned goods? Aside from the gall, in most states it is illegal to kiek back a commission on an insurance policy.

Style in Fabric

By MARY SUE MILLER

Fall fabrics are prime news. Their variety gives all fashion new looks. For instance • There are cling fabrics in silky matte surfaces, in sheer wool jerseys, in fluid wool and silk crepes. • "Wet" fabrics grow in numbers, offering lightrefracting satiny finishes, plastic leathers and reptiles. • Luxurious fibers make a comeback. Among their number count mohair, angora, c ashmere, fleece, velours, man-made furs. Not to mention natural furs and Classic materials arrive on the scene in such guises marvellous loopy tweeds, and argyle knits. Or in beloved menswear - gabardine, twill, flannel, corduroy, glens and chevrons, double face wools, ushed cottons. • See-through sheers intrigue in such fancies as knits with holes, transparent knits, evening chiffons and sari gauzes. · As for color, darks are richly cast in burgundy, aubergine, deep green, Subject: Fashion

Teacher: Miss Frith

LESSON I: THE SWEATER

Growing abundant this year in soft, uncluttered glory, or wildly patterned, bubbled, cabled and textured. Usually found among rare skirts or wide leg pants.

LESSON II: THE SKIRT

A perennial: This year with texture in the spotlight. Find them in flips, saucy flares, classic pleats, sleek A's with heaps of top stitching. Most often mated with blouses and

LESSON III: THE SUIT

A basic commodity. Right now in lean, rangy wools, well expressed textures, natty knits or combination blends. Often found belted, buttoned and overstitched. Highly versatile.

LESSON IV: THE COAT

An integral item. Primarily from the family of fun furs known as the great imposters. Looks like Persian lamb, fox, racoon, seal or beaver. The difference lies in the price.

U.S. Army Shipping More Gas

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The U.S. army plans to ship seven more trainloads of the controversial phosgene gas to chemical companies during the next two months, a government official said Wednesday.

The official said the ship ments - one will be of 225 oneton cylinders of phosgene to Geismar, La., Monday --- will complete the shipment of phosgene to civilian companies from the Rocky Mountain army arsenal near Denver, Colo.

William Black chief of the hazardous material section of the federal railroad administration, said one other shipment may be made, but a permit had not yet been issued. DEMONSTRATIONS

A similar shipment of the deadly gas to Lockport, -N.Y., last week prompted demonstra tions and a widespread contro-

The Monday shipment to Geismar will be one of seven shipments which will be in the hands of consignees by the end of October, Black said.

Five of the seven trains will go to Rubicon Chemical Co. at Geismar and the other two will travel to the Vandemark Chemical Co. at Lockport. Chemical Commodities Corp. of Olathe, Kan., will make the Geismar shipments and Jones Chemical Co. of Caledonia, N.Y., is the shipper of the Lockport consignments

Last Wednesday in Washington, an FBI spokesman made the only official statement on the case: "The special agent alleged to have been involved is no longer employed by the Further comment was declined and "Daye" was not identified. It was learned, however, the FBI suspended five days later.

That was Thursday, Aug. 12 the same day that "an FBI agent named Dave" was first accused in open court as the instigator of the July, 1968, Bonanno bombing.

* * 1 phrase set off an alarm in FBI headquarters and triggered a recollection here of an earlier hearing, in which and LOCAL FRESH FBI agent named "Hale" was linked to the September, 1968, bombing of a beauty shop. FBI agent David Hale assigned to Tucson six years ago and known as a specialist in Mafia intrigues - refused to comment whether he might be the "Dave" or the "Hale" mentioned in the two hearings, held seven months apart.

The FBI announced it was pursuing the case and cooperating with state officials. Beyond that, from both the FBI and other authorities, silence has been absolute.

More than a dozen known or reputed Cosa Nostra figures have homes in Tucson. Among the most noted is Bonanno, once SWANSON FROZEN regarded as a possible successor to the late Vito Genovese, who headed the commission that acts nationally as the mob's "board of directors."

Bonanno's downfall began in 1964 when he was kidnapped in New York in what is believed to have been a battle for control of racket interests between Bonanno's family and another of the five Mafia "families" that operate there.

But when Genovese died in prison last February, the 63year-old Bonanno was in semiretirement in Tucson, claiming to be suffering from a heart condition that would keep him from testifying before a grand CUTRITE REFILLS jury in New York.

It was against this background that the Tucson bombings began. On July 21, 1968, a bomb exploded in a garage at the Grace ranch, owned by Reg. 31c Peter Licavoli, a major Mufia figure from Detroit. The next night, two blasts shattered the patio wall of Bonanno's home.

* * * These opening salvos in Tucson's "Mafia war" were followed by more than 20 other bombings at the homes or LAUNDRY DETERGENT businesses of Bonanno associates. One took place in September at the Wig Beauty Salon, where the receptionist was Mrs. Joyce Battaglia. former wife of imprisoned mobster Charles (Batts) Battaglia.

In January of this year, Mrs. Battaglia testified, in a hearing CAKE MIX on the bombing of the beauty salon, that before the bombing "a man who called and said his warned her that she'd better name was Hale with the FBI" quit her job or 'he'd see to it that I did."

This aspect of her testimony passed with little apparent notice, but was recalled Aug. 12 PLUMROSE in a one-day Superior Court hearing for Paul Mills Stevens. 22, and William John Dunbar. 26, accused of bombing Bonanno's home.

Jane Hitchcock, 21, an Reg. $1.19 cquaintance of Dunbar, testiacquaintance of Dunbar, testified that both Stevens and Dunbar told her "an FBI agent PO" to the bombings because he wanted "the two heads of the Mafia to fight so there'd be only Reg. 58c one head."

Most ratings services try to find out how many people are watching television shows. The IQ survey run by the U.S. Home Testing Institute aims more for the answers to qualitative questions. Its latest survey of a sizeable number of U.S. households asked, for one thing, What are your favorite summer shows? Family Affair won, with Disney next, then Adam-12, Glen Campbell, Mission: Impossible, Johany Cash, Hee Haw, Mod Squad, Wild Kingdom, Laugh-In and Ironside. Another question sought favorite performers among a list of 500 living or dead. The leaders, in order, Bob Hope, John Wayne, James Stewart, Clark Gable, Brian Keith and Anissa Jones of Family Affair, Jim Nabors, Spencer Tracy, Gary Cooper, Bill Cosby, Michael Landon, Red Skelton, Glen Campbell and Dean Martin. Looks like Family Affair and old movies have something.

McGeer Tours NDP Areas

McGeer travelled through a Liberal wasteland most of Wednesday and at a meeting of 150 enthusiastic supporters in Courtenay, he labelled the final seven 'days of the current election campaign a contest between courage and fear. Dr. McGeer stopped in Courtenay Wednesday evening after travelling on the Move with McGeer campaign bus through NDP territory of former leader Robert Strachan in Cowichan-Malahat and the Nanaimo riding, the eat of NDP candidate David Stupich, making only a few stops and one small speech to party workers. He drove into the Comox constituency, held by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, and was joined by a 20-car cavalcade as a prelude to a rally in support of local Liberal candidate Mrs. Henrietta "Cookie Chown, a pretty burnette mother of four, who is "not afraid of tough odds," Dr. McGeer said. * * * Dr. McGeer chose Comox Liberal government would appoint a full-time minister of labor and would not appoint any minister without portfolio. "The political control of the Mediation Commission will end," Dr. McGeer added. He said civil servants would have the right to organize freely and bargain collectively and he said the Liberal current law preventing a union or a member of a union from using the news media to express an opinion or state facts about a labor dispute. When Dr. McGeer said he would wage "total and unconditional war" on tendency these days to blow our hardcarned pay cheques on what might be more chrome on it than the Jones's, a panelled bar in the rumpus room actulated to arouse the envy of the Smith's, a ritry fur coat, actually too warm for comfort and out of place to wear except upon rare and very special

I suppose these purchases pay off, in a sense, by building up the ego, but buying things just to impress other people implies a certain immaturity or perhaps insecurity would be a better

I never regret money spent on objects which genuinely contribute to a more gracious life - things which give pleasure or comfort or satisfaction in themselves. Could be, perhaps phonograph record which will still excite and satisfy after a hundred playings, or a good sterio hi-fi on which to play it; a book which can be dipped in with pleasure five years hence; a really comfortable and trouble-free heating system for the home. Or it pleasures which can be bought so cheapty as a flowering shrub or tree, and it is amazing how much beauty can

There are a

Our local nurserymen have a nation-wide reputation for the excellence of their stocks and the reasonable prices charged, and I have often wondered how they ever manage to make a living selling a plant for three or four dollars which has been as much as three years in the raising.

It isn't easy for the novice gardener to pick his shrubs, for there is such a bewildering assortment available, and there is nothing in the nursery catalogues to indicate whether particular shrub is an easy doer or a miffy, difficult subject. Some kinds just won't grow unless given a very special kind of soil; others need pruning at exactly the right time and in the right

If you decide to treat yourself this fall to a few flowering shrubs, it seems to me the sensible thing is to start with the easy-going, surefire kinds which will put up a good show even if you should do everything wrong. Later, as your thumbs develop at greenish hue, you can take a crack at some of the fussier

I think my first choice of an easy shrub for a new garden would be a lorsythia, for it is next to impossible to keep this handsome plant from growing and producing its golden yellow bells. While any kind of forsythia is a welcome addition to the garden, I am especially fond of one called Lynwood Gold, as it has a more upright habit of growth and bigger blossoms than the run-of-the-mill kinds,

Forsythia will do well in almost any kind of soil barring a swamp, and the only pruning needed is to thin out some the older branches occasionally and to nip off the tips of overly vigorous shoots which run up through the centre of the bush.

Another surefire shrub is philadelphus, affectionately nicknamed Mock Orange because its blooms look and smell like orange blossoms. Belle Etoile is one of the most fragrant, with a purple blotch on each white petal. Virginal has double flowers like tiny white roses. Grandiflora has the largest blossoms but no scent. The pruning needed is simply the removal of some of the older stems after the blossoms fade to make room for new growth. I will discuss some other easy-to-grow flowering shrubs in a future colu

The Guilt-Makers

If anyone were to ask me what gives an American the most pleasure. I would answer it is to make somebody else feel guilty. We all wallow in guilt and the most simple telephone call can send us into the depths of despair.

of his "classics" behind.

Art Buchwald has disappeared for a few weeks. He left some...

Here are some of the leading guilt-makers in one's life. For obvious reasons, I haven't identified who they are. "Yes, son . . . it's nice talking to you. I'm always delighted to hear from you, even though you only call once a week . . . No, I 'm not complaining. After all, you have your own life to lead, and I'm not one of those mothers who is always interfering ...

"How is everybody? ' . . Yes, I'd love to come over some time, but I don't want to come if I'm not wanted . . . I know you want me to come over, but I have the feeling you're just asking me to be nice to me . . . I vowed when my children went away I wouldn't be a burden to them . . . You have all those swell friends and I'm sure they wouldn't want to talk to me . . . No, son, I'm not being ridiculous . . . Yes, I oome next Sunday . . . Have you asked Marjorie? . . . Maybe she'd rather I come at another time . . . All right, but I don't want to be a burden . . . I won't stay long, just to see the children and then I'll leave . . . Will you stop shouting? . . . I don't know why you get mad at me every time you call."

The second one who always makes you feel guilty is: "Hello, Harry . . . This is Johnny . . . I was wondering if you and your wife would like to come over to dinner next Friday . . . Oh, you're busy . . . Sure, sure I understand You're a big man now and it's pretty hard for you to keep up with your old school buddies . . . Heck, no, I'm not sore I'm proud of you . . . After all, you're the only one from the gang who made it big . . . It would have been nice to talk over old times, but I guess we better make it another time ... Irma told me not to call. She said she knew you'd be tled up . . . Yeh, I'll call you some other time . . . I'm grateful you returned my call. Irma said you wouldn't even do that."

The third guilt-maker: Yes, dear ... you have to go to Miami next week for the meeting . . . No, that's all right . . . of course I understand . . . What do you mean can I go? You're being silly now. You know I can't leave the children . . . I'm not angry . . . I've got some books I want to read and there always television to watch . . . How long will you be gone? . . . Four days? Good, I just wanted to know how many sleeping pills I'd need ... you know how badly I sleep when you're gone.

"I wish you would not keep protesting so. I know it's important. Everything you do is important . . . nothing I do seems to be very important . . . get the kids to school, clean the house, fix the stove, I think I'll become a housemaid . . . then at least I'd get paid for what I do.

"Of course I'm not bored . . . I just used a new delergent today and it's changed my whole life, just as it says in the television commercials ... my sheets are whiter, whiter, whiter, whiter, and wait until you touch my hands so smooth, smooth, smooth. Are you coming home for dinner tonight? . . . I just thought I'd ask . . . maybe you had a business appointment or something . . . Good, I'll see you at six, but if something comes up don't worry about me. I've atill got the crossword puzzle to do."

The final guilt-maker is guess who? 'Hello, Daddy, when are you coming home from the office? . . . Are you and Mommy going out tonight? . . . You never stay at home... You're always going out... Are you going to bring a present?... You never buy me anything... Mommy won't let me stay up and watch television . . . You never let me do anything . . . I didn't hit Jennifer . . . she hit me first ... you're always taking her side ... nobody loves . . I wish I was an orphan . . . nobody cares if I'm dead or alive . . . Goodbye, Daddy. I'll see you soon.'

Gaglardi in Stiff Fight for Political Life

KAMLOOPS - Philip Arthur Gaglardi is fighting for his political life in this interior riding where he has reigned supreme for the past 17 years.

The main issue here, quite literally, is Mr. Gaglardi, the notoriety surrounding his minister in 1968, and his waning local popularity.

* * * A sampling of public opinion shows he will probably retain his seat Aug. 27, but most of questioned thought it would be with a reduced majority. The high-flying Liberals and the NDP are both confident that their candidates will give Mr. Gaglardi the fright of his political life. And both claim that with a slightly better days of the campaign they could pull off the upset of the election.

Yesterday: I stated that immediate detailed study of the ocean currents off shore should be carried out and evaluated before extended outfalls, with or without primary treatment plants are constructed. It should be emphasized that where sewage is discharged into the sea, extended outfalls are abso lutely essential, whether or not primary treatment is also used, since the effluent from primary treatment plants has exactly the same bacterial and virus content as the untreated sewage. Criticism has been raised, especially by biologists, that alternative methods of sewage disposal, which might be suitable for this area, have not been adequately researched. The process known as composting whereby refuse and sewage sludge can be converted into a clean material for use as fertilizer, is one such alternative method, being used in many other parts of the world. I am not well enough informed about the many factors involved in composting or whether it could be suitably or economically im-plemented here. However, since we are planning sew-age disposal for many years ahead, for a greatly in-creased population with em-phasis on the promotion of a healthier environment, at ac-ceptable cost, the process of composting should be given immediate and urgent study.

A commission of engineers, biologists, public health physicians, economists and mem-bers of related disciplines

As the cost of living and the cost of dying continue to rise, one of the few relatively stable expenses for those covered by B.C. hospital and medical insurance is the cost

As many parents can attest, it isn't any cheaper to raise a child now than it was 10 years ago, but the initial cost to parents hasn't changed much. For example, hospital care for the average seven-or-eight-

For the woman not covered by BCHIS, the picture is different. In 1959, a woman would pay $17.05 a day in a ward in St. Joseph's Hospital $5 m day for the baby.

Today the room would be $46.85 a day, and the baby's care would be $7 a day.

The situation is similar at Royal Jubilee Hospital. standard ward was $18.65 a day 10 years ago, an d the newborn's care was $5 a day. Now the room is $41.50 and baby care is $7.

Doctors' fees for delivery and pre-natal care have also increased, from about $75 in 1959 to $120 or so today. But the British Columbia Medical Plan reduces theco at to the patient to the cost of insurance premiums.

Once the baby and mother are home, the uvtual cost of being born starts to shoot up. Diapers, which sold for $1.49 and up a dozen in 1959, now start at $4.67 a dozen.

Dear Ann Landers: Lloyd and I have been married for six months. The day we came home from our honeymoon Lloyd presented me with 14 pairs of socks to be darned, seven shirts with frayed cuffs (He showed me how his mother turns them over) two jackets with holes at the elbows and five pairs of torn slacks.

Lloyd refuses to throw anything out. In fact he goes to second-hand sales to buy more worn-out rags. I have plenty of housework and yard work to keep me busy. I simply cannot spend hours mending, darning and patching things for this miserly guy who is not that hard up. I'm 23 and Lloyd is 39. Any advice? — Thimbled Theirns.

Dear Thim: Lloyd didn't need a wife. He should have merged with Singer. Tell him you will mend ripped seams and socks that are worth saving, but the stem-to-stem salvage program is out. Also inform him that if he buys any more rummage he will wear it holes and all The time to call a halt is now or you'll be hemmed in for the rest of your life.

Dear Ann: I am a divorces who is attractive but not beautiful, good company but not brilliant, comfortable but not rich. A certain bachelor in our crowd is constantly paired with me bl friends, collea-gues, and relatives. Everyone thinks of us as a couple but

In the past six months we have spent 30 evenings together - by actual count. I have invited him to the theater, to concerts, the ballet, to dinners at my home and I have taken him to several family affairs.

* * * The truth is as follows: He is a charming companion but he hasn't spent $10 on me since the day I met him. What do you think of this relationship? - Gee Gee.

Dear Gee Gee: It's beautiful - if you want to go through life buying tickets, giving parties and inviting this charming fellow to be your guest. I am oure, will be available as long- as you are willing to provide him with free entertainment.

Dear Ann: My husband sells insurance. He works harder than anybody I know. The poor guy is out of the house by 8 in the morning. He often makes calls after supper and p.m. or later. He gets no guaranteed salary, but works strictly on a commission basis.

My complaint is this: Several friends and relatives to whom he has sold insurance policies have said. "I'm sure you don't want to make any money on us - how about knocking off your commis-He replies. course." Then he mails them a check for the commission when he gets paid.

I have a neighbor whose husband sells automobiles on commission and she has the same problem. What do you think of this? - Empty Ouf-

Dear Em: I think these bargain hunters have plenty of gail. Would they ask a friendly grocer for free can-ned goods? Aside from the gall, in most states it is fllegal to kick back a commission on an insurance policy.

Then he'd ask the janitor if his corns ached and finally before talking to me he'd make a spot check on how many men had their cars washed to see if showers were really imminent.

Perhaps I was being too harsh on him, but one day on a tour of the bureau I glanced in his closet and saw a large black unbrella. "Why an umbrella?" I asked. "The sun is schining."

He smiled knowingly and said, "I carry it every day of my life." * * *

The public's interest in the weather is fantastic. I have an aunt who considers it second only to the death notices. She calls me up regularly and warns, "There's a high pressure storm system building up in the Gulf of Mexico.

Rights Unit Told

By ALAN ANDERSON

On Monday, John Sherlock. director of B.C.'s Haman Rights Act, was saying he din't expect much to come out of Tuesday morning's public hearings of the human rights commission at the Law Courts in Victoria.

"We deplore the fact that there's this degree of public apathy." he said. On Tuesday, commission chairman W. H. Sands, deputy minister of labor, was saving he was "very, very pleased" about the submissions made to the commission. And vice-chairman Mrs

Rex Eaton was saving it made her "proud to be a woman" to hear what two other women had said. The two other women were the poor," said Mrs. Livingston. 'The people I have worked with are not helped by any existing legislation, and I can't imagine any sweeping human rights legislation that could possibly help them, unless it is vastly different from anything I have heard

Mrs. Livingston described the people she said were being excluded from modern society. "Many of them have been on welfare spasmodically,"

"They have

Mrs. Talbot, a member of the Greater Victoria Women's Action Committee, said discrimination in the worst sense was constantly being practised against recipients of welfare. They are not treated as human beings. They are not really considered human beings." she said. "There is a great deal of abuse - mental and emotional abuse - of these people by administrators of welfare.

She said she was herself a foster parent of three children and knew how hard it was to make the foster-parent grants go a round. "But welfare recipients get far less, and they get all this psychological abuse on top of their other difficulties." she said.

Larry Ryan, chairman of the human rights council of the Victoria United Nations Association, said Social Credit advertisements about basic rights were misleading.

He said he hoped the commission would widen its scope and employ permanent staff "to go out to the people, see what's really happening, and investigate complaints."

He added: "They won't find any shortage of work if they Mr. Sands said the COMMERCE, Calif. (LAT) - "Hold it Eva, I'll take you right to your door," declared bus driver Hal White as he wheeled his bus around the corner Tuesday stopping in front of Mrs. Eva Pena's house.

Unusual service? In most cities yes — but not in the city of Commerce, a small town four miles southeast of downtown Los Angeles.

Gaglardi in Stiff Fight for Political Life

By IAN STREET

KAMLOOPS - Philip Arthur Gaglardi is fighting for his political life in this interior riding where he has reigned supreme for the past 17 years.

The main issue here, quite literally, is Mr. Gaglardi, the n o t oriety surrounding his minister in 1968, and his waning local popularity. * * *

A sampling of public opinion shows he will probably retain his seat Aug. 27, but most of questioned thought it would be with a reduced majority. The high-flying Liberals and the NDP are both confident that their candidates will give Mr. Gaglardi the fright of his political life. And both claim that with a slightly better then even break over the final days of the campaign they could pull off the upnet of the election.

It's been a rowdy, rather unpleasant campaign to date, opposition parties are innuendo while the Liberals claim that some party
